The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the Nation's historic places worthy of preservation. Authorized by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, the National Park Service's National Register of Historic Places is part of a national program to coordinate and support public and private efforts to identify, evaluate, and protect America's historic and archeological resources.

To learn more about the National Register program in Alaska, join Katie Ringsmuth, Ph.D., for Part 1 of OHA's new ongoing series Preserving Our Places.

As the Alaska State Historian and Deputy SHPO, Katie Ringsmuth manages Alaska's National Register program. She joined OHA staff in January 2021.

This is the final presentation of OHA's 2022 Virtual Education Series.

For details or to register for the session, please email dnr.oha@alaska.gov.
